

The Effects of Attentional Focus - Expanding Our Horizons of Motor Learning

When teaching a new task, emphasis is always placed upon proper form; whether it be how to shoot a basketball or how to perform a weighted squat. Greatest performance will always be the result when form is the focus, right? What if this external focus was not the most effective way to increase performance? There is another, more effective way, to increase skills and improve performance.

- Lead Presenter: Arthur Hockwald, University of Nevada, Las Vegas
- Room: San Juan